Farmingville, NY - On Friday, January 25, Supervisor Ed Romaine was the guest speaker at the Long Island Mid-Suffolk Business Action (LIMBA) breakfast meeting held at the Holiday Inn Ronkonkoma. Supervisor Romaine spoke about economic development and pro-business initiatives he is undertaking, including the Ronkonkoma Hub, a mixed-use, transit oriented project adjacent to the LIRR railroad station. He also spoke about the abandoned Kmart property in Middle Island which he said has the potential to be developed in a way that would benefit the community. Other subjects discussed were the Town's budget and finances, as well as the Landfill. He later participated in a question and answer session with those in attendance.

"I thank the members of LIMBA for giving me the opportunity to speak at their meeting," said Supervisor Romaine, "This organization really has a finger on the pulse of Long Island and I commend their leadership and members for maintaining such a strong commitment to addressing the most important issues facing our region."

LIMBA is an organization dedicated to promote and address transportation, education, energy, environment and infrastructure issues that affect the quality of life on Long Island. For more information, visit www.limba.net.
